Dear Mr. Grant,

I and my family own Tomintoul Steading Braemar, which we converted about 13 years ago into a cottage. Our cottage is the Steading of one of the three crofts situated in the part of Braemar known as Tomintoul, on the lower slopes of Morrone. For years we have been aware of the Tomintoul Croft building, which had become totally derelict, and were delighted to hear that it had been purchased with a view to restoration.

I have now seen the plans which were on show in the Braemar Tourist Office, and would like to support the proposals without reservation. To restore the old croft house is a superb idea, and the design and materials of the accompanying dwelling are attractive and in no way out of place. We should be delighted if this were all to go ahead.

Yours faithfully

James Friend
