Cairngorms 2030

Inspired by the Gaelic word Dùthchas, Cairngorms 2030 is putting the power to tackle the nature and climate crisis in the hands of the people who live, visit and work in the UK's largest national park.

Dùthchas

[noun, 'tu:xəs/]

The deep-rooted connection between people and nature

Cairngorms 2030

Over five years, the programme will inspire rural and urban communities throughout Scotland and beyond to take action and make a difference.

In so doing, the Cairngorms will become the first national park in the UK to achieve net zero carbon emissions.

Across 20 long-term projects we will...

Transform the way land is managed and used to benefit nature

Empower communities to shape the future of their local area

Make getting around the Cairngorms easier, safer and greener

Foster healthier, happier communities with wellbeing at their heart

£1 million Communities Fund

A paid panel of 18 people who live in and love the National Park will design the whole process to hand out £1 million to Cairngorms communities.

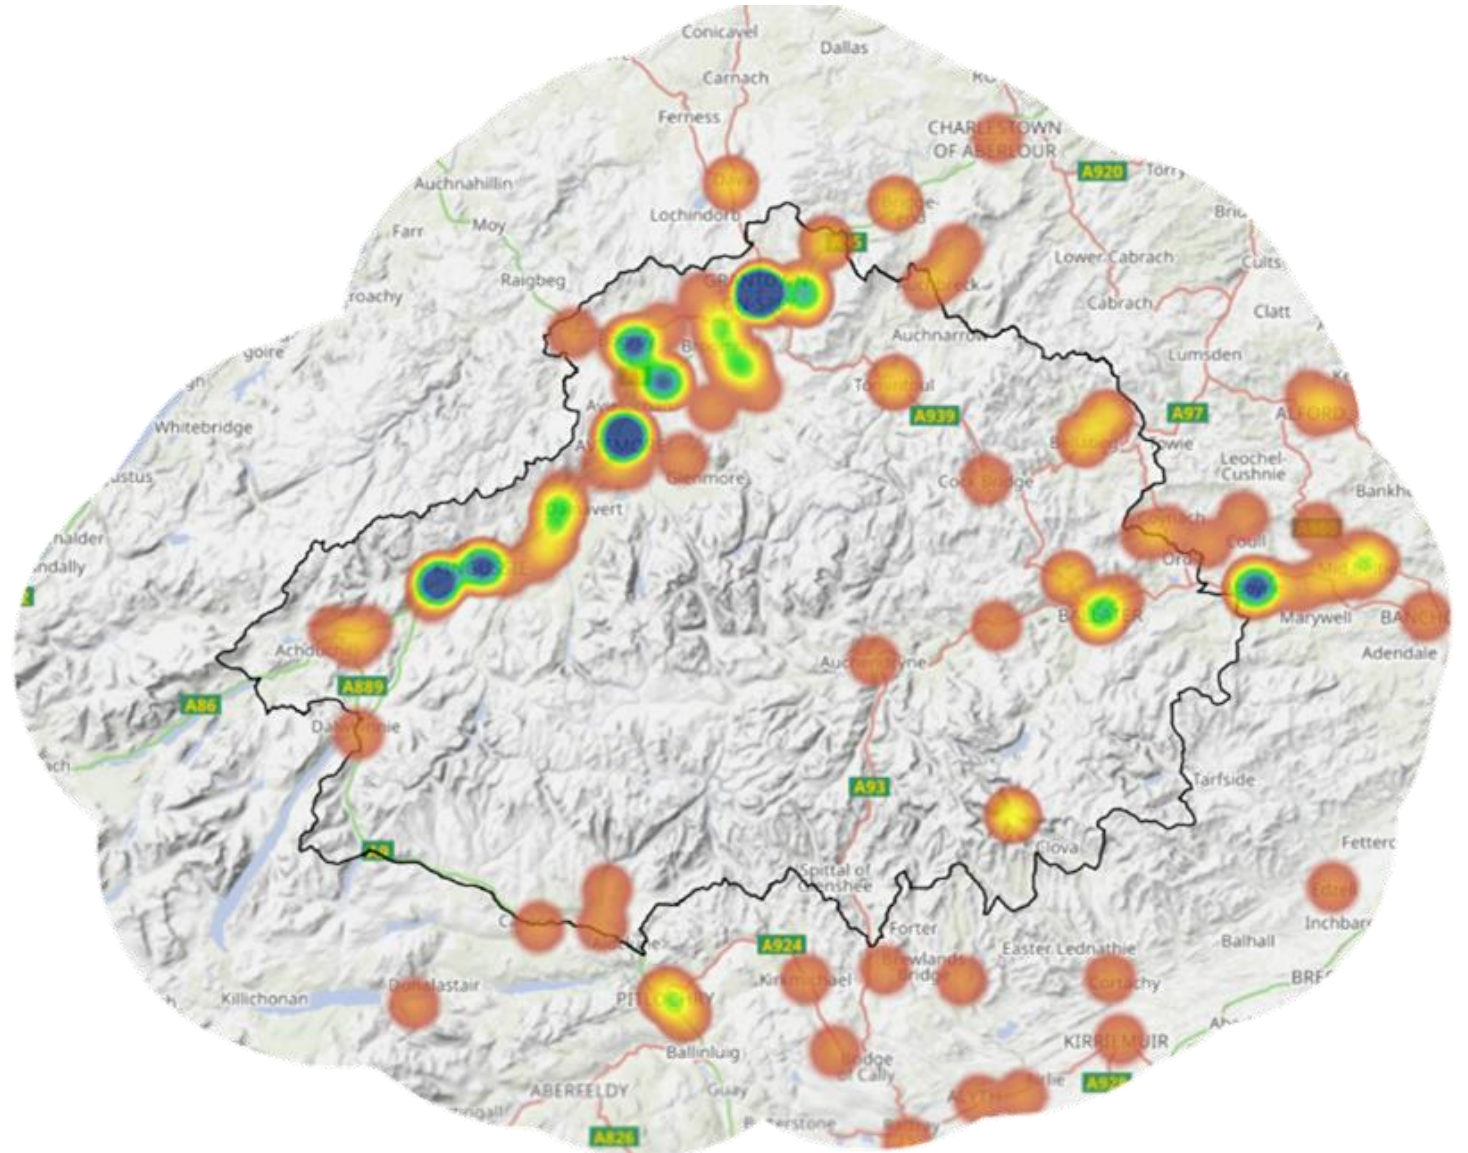

The panel will make a range of important choices about the fund, from eligibility criteria to maximum award amounts and how the money is distributed.

250 people expressed interest in being part of the group

Every part of the National Park represented, from Blair Atholl to Aviemore and Ballater

120 'never or almost never' previously engaged with the Park Authority

Real diversity of responses, including 7.5% ethnic minority applicants, 11% LGBTQ+ and 13.6% disabled people

A wide-angle landscape photograph showing a calm body of water in the foreground, which perfectly reflects the sky and the surrounding terrain. The sky is a clear blue with scattered white cumulus clouds. In the middle ground, a dense forest of dark green coniferous trees stretches across the frame. Behind the forest, several layers of rolling mountains are visible, with the closer ones appearing in shades of blue and green, and the more distant ones fading into a hazy blue. The overall atmosphere is serene and natural.
